Create your own Kandinsky Painting

Materials Needed:

- white rectangular paper (we used 12x18 white paper)
- tempera paint in the primary colors (red, yellow, blue)
- brushes/water
- mixing tray (we used paper plates)
- oil pastels/or chalk

First you fold your paper into 8 sections. Then you start with a dot in the middle of the rectangle spaces and paint around the dot in different colors until you fill up the space.

The Noisy Paint Box is the story of Vasily Kandinsky and his path to becoming one of the first abstract artists.

While the dialogue is imagined, the facts are true – such as Kandinsky's ability to feel colors as sounds and sounds as colors. Kids see how Kandinsky's art wasn't accepted at first but with enough perseverance, persistence, and breaking from the norm, he eventually broke through to become a famous artist.

Select music with various speeds and let your child paint to the music. Watch as your child paints "Fast, fast, fast" to upbeat music and notice how their paint brush flows across the page to soft and subtle beats.
